

February 26, 2026: On the Two-Faced Nature of Data Sharing in the Trump Administration

Apparently, the KKK-Klown has no problem sharing the information of average American citizens, and our families, while hiding information about himself and his family.

Rules for me: Average American (supposed beneficiary of the American government)

The Trump administration is loosening restrictions on the sharing of law enforcement information with the CIA and other intelligence agencies, officials said, overriding controls that have been in place for decades to protect the privacy of U.S. citizens.

To hear more, download the Noa app

Government officials said the changes could give the intelligence agencies access to a database containing hundreds of millions of documents — from FBI case files and banking records to criminal investigations of labor unions — that touch on the activities of law-abiding Americans.

Rules for thee: El Presidente (convicted felon and actual beneficiary of the American government)

News > World > Americas > US politics

Whistleblower complaint against Gabbard revolves around intercepted call about Kushner: report

President Donald Trump's son-in-law was reportedly being discussed in call between foreign intelligence officials that was intercepted and allegedly suppressed by Director of National Intelligence Tulsi Gabbard

Joe Sommerlad

Tuesday 17 February 2026 16:55 GMT

Trump employs 'rarely used' tactic to keep bombshell complaint on lockdown: report

By Alexander Willis
February 25, 2026 11:14AM ET

WASHINGTON—The Trump administration told Congress it won't share with lawmakers the classified intelligence that led to a whistleblower complaint against U.S. spy chief Tulsi Gabbard, citing presidential claims of executive privilege.

And of course, the missing pages still cannot be found after it took an Act of Congress to order that they be released!

Do you really expect me to salute 'Murica under these conditions? It would take an act of rationalizing mental gymnastics to make my mind believe that America is functioning properly under the current facts of my life. I am personally (with immediate and verifiable facts known peculiarly to myself and my family) witnessing a government of criminals, by criminals, and for criminals - while pretending that it represents We, the (law abiding) People.

Welcome to America, the Gemini.

Epstein Files Are Missing Records About Woman Who Made Claim Against Trump

Documents released by the Justice Department briefly mention a woman's unverified accusation that Donald J. Trump assaulted her in the 1980s, when she was a minor. But several memos related to her account are not in the files.